Principles and Standards

The American Anti-Corruption Institute (AACI) promulgated the Ten Principles of Fighting Corruption, accompanied by its Standards on Fighting Corruption (SFC), to form an internationally accepted framework to fight corruption effectively, efficiently, and intelligently. They help stakeholders to:

- Promote consistent practice and behavior and facilitate effective responses to identified corruption risks.
- Help management and other stakeholders to assess and evaluate the entity's commitment to fighting fraud and corruption, and
- Support international efforts in lowering corruption risks to acceptable low levels.
